Aileen Jones Gamble Is 'Alumnus of the Year'

DR. POSTON PRESENTS AWARD TO MRS. GAMBLE
... "for her fine spirit."

At Annual Banquet

YOU CAN HELP G-W, ALUMNI TOLD

Gardner-Webb's former students can make a vital contribution to the college in many ways, President E. Eugene Poston told alumni gathered for their annual reunion and banquet.

These ways include praying for the school's work, for "God will open avenues that are undreamed of," giving financial support to the best of one's ability, enlisting the type of student "who wants to serve others in the spirit of Christ," enlisting the type of faculty who will fulfill Gardner-Webb's definite Christian purpose, and enlisting other supporters of the Christian life enterprise.

In an age when higher education is endangered, he said, the independent church-related college may remain a bastion.

Dr. Poston called for support in the current capital fund drive to raise $1,511,000 for a new library, new dormitory, endowment, remodeling the present library into classrooms and building an addition to Webb Administration Building. He said these projects are essential in the college's drive to meet the accreditation and enrollment requirements of four-year status.

Gathered on the eve of the college's step-up to its first senior class, alumni reviewed acquaintances with old friends and teachers. In special rooms were the classes of 1911, 1916, 1921, 1926, 1931, 1936, 1941, 1946, 1951, 1946, 1951, 1956, 1961 and 1966.

A highlight of the evening was a hilarious rendering of the mock "Grasshopper Opera" by Mrs. Nettie Gidney, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hill, Dr. Phil Ferris, Dr. George Cribbs and Dr. George Cox. The number mourns in full melodramatic opera style the demise of a lovely grasshopper snatched from his poison vine by a turkey gobbler.

Alumni Activities Director J. Randolph Elrod presided in the absence of the association president, Mrs. Myron Bellinger Rice, who was hospitalized. Others appearing on the successful banquet program were Harry Padgett, Boiling Springs Baptist Church music minister who led singing; the Rev. Hugh Borden of Spruce Pine's First Baptist Church, who gave the invocation; and the Rev. Bill Wallace of Charlotte's Woodlawn Baptist Church, who led the benediction.

Mrs. J. Warren Gamble (Aileen Jones '59) was named Gardner-Webb College's "Alumnus of the Year" in a presentation closing the annual Alumni Banquet May 16.

The coveted award, given by college trustees, was presented by G-W President Dr. E. Eugene Poston to an evocation from Mrs. Gamble's classmates, fellow alumni, faculty and staff members gathered in the Charles I. Dover Campus Center. Dr. Poston said she "truly has demonstrated a life of service and exemplifies the spirit of Gardner-Webb."

A Shelby resident, Mrs. Gamble is executive director of the G. Mox Gardner Foundation and an insurance agent. She once was Gov. Gardner's private secretary.

Dr. Poston commended her activities in the fields of homemaking, business, church work and education. In a lifetime of service, she has been active in Shelby's Second Baptist Church, Kings Mountain Baptist Association, Daughters of the American Revolution, VFW Auxiliary, Business and Professional Women's Club, Women's Democratic Club and Gardner-Webb's Alumni Association, which she served as president in 1950.

The "captains" of her service, Dr. Poston said, is her humble spirit, in the sense of the Beatitudes which begin "Blessed are the meek . . .", throughout her association with the great and magnificent.

"She possesses a great spirit," he concluded.

Mrs. Gamble and her husband are the parents of a daughter and son, Susan and Bill. Unknown to her, the family and special friends had gathered at the banquet for the surprise award.

John Roberts Elected President of Alumni

John Roberts '49, editor of South Carolina's Baptist Courier, will lead Gardner-Webb's Alumni Association as president. He and other new officers were elected by acclamation during a business session held in conjunction with the May annual banquet.

Roberts, named Gardner-Webb's "Alumnus of the Year" in 1969, is president of the Greenville, S. C., alumni chapter. He formerly served the college as a faculty member and public information officer. The monthly journal he edits is the official organ of the South Carolina Baptist Convention.

Bill McSwain '51 of Gastonia was elected vice president, and Mrs. Daphne Randolph Bridges '54, alumni office manager, was named secretary.

Mrs. Bridges succeeds the association's beloved Mrs. Nancy Anthony Griffin, secretary for the past 30 years and a stalwart of the organization. The years of her day-to-day duties as the college president's secretary have made it impossible for her to continue active work with the association, it was reported.

In recognizing Mrs. Griffin for her contributions, Alumni Director J. Randolph Elrod presented her a plaque with the association's thanks. Those present gave her a standing ovation.

During the business session, the board of directors was increased from nine to 40 members—one of several constitutional changes approved by alumni present.

NEW ALUMNI PRESIDENT JOHN ROBERTS

... with Nancy Griffin, center, and Daphne Bridges, new secretary.

In other constitutional changes designed to accompany forever status, the association voted to allow reelection of officers for two succeeding terms, to allow special meetings by mutual consent of alumni officers and college administrators; to establish a standing awards committee; and to allow for election of an association director by a two-thirds majority vote of the board.

Director Elrod reported that the association has 28 chapters and that 10 chapters held meetings during the year. The alumni office also published an alumni manual for chapter and association work and prepared a deed for each contributor to the Annual Fund.

He reported that approximately 25 per cent of alumni made Annual Fund contributions and appealed for further donations. Many foundations, he said, gave their own giving to colleges by the measure of the number of alumni contributing.

RALEIGH HAS SUCCESSFUL MEET

DOROTHY AUSTELL

The Raleigh-Wake Chapter of the G-W Alumni Association met April 14 in one of the most successful area gatherings of the year. Attendance was the highest of any chapter meeting, thanks to diligent efforts of President Dorothy Austell, other officers and a telephone committee composed of Mrs. Louise Gary Fisher, Mrs. Ann Sawyer, Mrs. Jo Ann Dutton and Mrs. Becky Calkins. This committee has volunteered to continue to serve as long as the four live in the Raleigh area.

John Benson was elected as chapter president for the coming year. Serving with him will be Sam O'Neal, vice president.

Dover Scholars

Charles I. Dover congratulates winners of the Dover Foundation, Inc. scholarships to Gardner-Webb College. These four pictured, whose scholarships amount to $500, are, left to right, Carol Elizabeth Cathey of Burns High School, Andrea Sine Huffstetter of Kings Mountain High School, Janice Len Moss of Crest High School and Deborah Sue Hoyle of Shelby High School. All are of Cleveland County.

Dover Foundation Provides G-W Scholarships For 13 Freshmen

The Dover Foundation, Inc., held a banquet on the campus in late May to announce winners of the scholarships to Gardner-Webb that it gives several rising freshmen in the Cleveland County area. This year, $300 awards went to four students—one senior at each of the county's four high schools—and $100 scholarships went to nine others.

Attending the dinner were the young winners, their parents, school and college officials, business and civic leaders and Dover representatives including Charles I. Dover, president of the foundation and the Dover Textile Group of industrial plants.

Dr. Paul Hardin III, president of Wofford College, was featured speaker. He urged the young people present to continue their educations to achieve the quality of open-mindedness.

The Dover Textile Group already is furnishing educational assistance to 87 students. It provides scholarships for each son and daughter of an employee of a Dover Group plant. Many of these scholarships are used for study at Gardner-Webb. The scholarships awarded at the banquet are given at large to winners selected by an independent committee. Their parents need not be employed by a Dover Group plant.

TWO NEW GRANTS ARE ESTABLISHED

Two other scholarships at Gardner-Webb have recently been announced.

Family and friends of George Edward Street have established an endowed scholarship to honor him. It will be awarded annually to a needy and worthy student. Mr. Street, a lifelong Baptist, was a former postmaster and mayor of Cornelius, N. C. He was a member of the Hopewell Baptist Church of Cornelius.

Pleasant Grove Baptist Church near Shelby, N. C., has established a $600 scholarship for a deserving G-W retirement student in Biblical Languages. The Rev. E. H. Scason is pastor of the church, which is a member of the Kings Mountain Baptist Association.

Book Commentary Will Be Published

A professor at Gardner-Webb College, Dr. Arthur G. Nehrlah, has been notified that his commentary on a history book, "African American History", will be published by the publisher of the book, Harcourt, Brace and World, Inc.

Dr. Nehrlah was asked by the publisher to review the book and his work will be widely circulated by the publisher. Dr. Nehrlah is a professor of History at Gardner-Webb.

COMMENCEMENT 1970 ... An End And A Beginning

In traditional pomp and pageantry, 101 students received associate of arts degrees in Gardner-Webb College commencement exercises held May 17 on the campus.

Dr. E. Eugene Poston awarded diplomas to the last regular junior college graduating class Gardner-Webb will have. Next spring, the college will confer four-year bachelor's degrees.

Two well-known North Carolina Baptists addressed the class, their families, friends, and faculty and staff. J. Marnie Grant of Raleigh, editor of the Biblical Recorder, gave the baccalaureate sermon. The Rev. R. F. Smith, pastor of the Durham, N. C., First Baptist Church, delivered the commencement address.

Grant told those gathered in the East Physical Education Building for the service that "If we ever needed a resurgence of Christian citizenship, it is today."

"The influence of the church must be harnessed to attack problems like crime, the terrible death toll on our highways, war and peace, racial hostilities and drug abuse," Grant said. "My hope is that the church you will build will have even greater impact in the halls of government. That it will be concerned with every move that affects the moral and spiritual atmosphere of our time and nation."

The Rev. Smith said people today must "have a point of reference around which we can somehow order our lives, construct our world, and find some basic purpose for life."

"Ours is the task of building a new world and of using some material out of the old to build the new and to use the old while the new is being built," said the speaker. "I seriously doubt that this can be accomplished apart from men and women who have found contentment with their answers, peace and purpose with their God and who are willing to live humbly for their cause."

LOOKING BACK: COMMENCEMENT 1918

Commencement exercises are based in tradition . . . from the flowing gowns and marled caps to the graduates' slow procession. Gardner-Webb's springtime commencement goes back to years gone by, too. . .

A copy of a 1918 commencement program for the then Baling Springs High School was sent by a dedicated alumna, L. R. Merrill of Raleigh, a member of that class, before the school was a college. That old program also mentions . . .

Activities began on a Sunday with an arrival service. On Monday there followed a declamation contest, with orations that included "Pyramids Not All Egyptian" and "One by One the Roses Fall" by Robert Greene and Bryan McGinnis; a noon art exhibit; a readers' contest with works like the like of "Tommy's Prayer" by Midge DePruitt and "The Dead Pussy Cat" by Jessie Bell Haghey; and an evening musicale with an alumni address and essay. Tuesday was devoted to a Class Day exercise with an address by Class President J. A. Berry, class prophecy by Xi Greene and other essays and an orators' contest.

Wednesday's literary address was delivered by Dr. Lee Davis Lodge, a Limestone College president. The Wednesday afternoon graduating exercise had members from the campus societies—Athletics, Seniors, Kappa Alpha and Kappa Gamma. Hugh Mowrey delivered an oration, "The Dawning of a New Day," and Marie Allen presented the essay, "Relieving the Suffering." The valedictory was presented by James L. Lovelace.

Citations For Excellence Awarded By G-W

Two Professors Receive Honors

Four people were presented citations by the Board of Trustees for their excellence in their field of service. They were the Rev. Gene L. Watterson, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Shelby, who was cited for his service in Christian ministry; H. Max Craig, Jr. of Stanley, cited for church, educational and civic leadership; Charles Pinckney Nannery of Gastonia, cited for his Christian philosophy; and Mrs. Richard M. Rice of Greenville, S. C., cited for educational guidance and counseling. Mr. Nannery and Mrs. Rice were confined to hospitals in their home towns and therefore unable to be present.

PROFESSORS HONORED

Two Gardner-Webb professors were honored in a special ceremony during the commencement service.

Dr. J. Thornton Lewis, professor of ancient languages and literature and head of that department, was cited along with Paul Stacy, assistant professor of biology.

The First Baptist Church of Greensboro, N. C., gave the college $1,500 to be divided equally between the two professors chosen by their colleagues as those who have contributed the most in their respective places of service on the faculty.

J. Thomas McGraw, vice president of academic affairs, made the presentation. Six students were honored for outstanding scholastic achievement. W. B. Harrell III of Durham received the Higgins Citizenship Medal; Janet Faye Cotner of Kings Mountain received the Curtis Citizenship medal; Elean Louise Stockland of Hennessey received the Bartle Bible Medal.

SCHOLASTIC AWARDS

The junior scholastic achievement award for a 3.925 quality point average out of a possible 4.0 went to Mary Esther Hudgins of Gastonia. The outstanding sophomore with a 3.925 was Jacqueline Biedges of Shelby; and the freshman award with a 4.0 went to Armonag Nazareth Abajias of Beirut, Lebanon.

Three Attend Meeting

Three G-W professors attended a recent meeting of the North Carolina group of the American Association of University Professors. The meeting was held in Hickory. Those attending were Thomas J. Bellard, Ernest Blankenship, Harry Hambricht and Dr. Akad Nicksen.

CITE FOR SERVICE—Dr. E. Eugene Posson, college president; center, reads citations presented during commencement exercises to the Rev. Gene L. Watterson, left, pastor of Shelby's First Baptist Church, and H. Max Craig Jr. of Stanley, N. C. Two others cited—Charles Pinckney Nannery of Gastonia, N. C., and Mrs. Richard M. Rice of Greenville, S. C., were unable to attend.

PROFESSORS WIN AWARDS—Thomas J. McGraw, college vice president of academic affairs, center, presented awards to Dr. J. Thornton Lewis, left, professor of ancient languages and literature, and Paul Stacy, assistant professor of biology. The faculty award was given by the Greensboro First Baptist Church, to be divided between two professors chosen by their colleagues as having contributed the most in their areas of service.

Alumni Chapters Win Top Honors At '70 Banquet

Special honors for Annual Fund giving and area meeting attendance were given to several O-W alumni chapters during the annual alumni banquet May 16. They were presented by Director of Alumni Activities J. Randolph Elrod.

The Shelby chapter topped top honors for having the largest chapter contribution to the Annual Fund and the covered plaque for highest percentage of members contributing. The Southeast Rutherford chapter was recognized for having the greatest per capita contributions to the fund.

The Raleigh chapter won an award for having the highest number attending its area meeting during the past year. Spangenberg and Gastonia chapters tied for the second highest attendance.

Director Elrod also presented certificates of appreciation to two students, David Croach and Robert Taylor, who promote reading of The Web each month in the college's data processing department.

Alumni Brothers

School - Spirited

It's good to hear from a loyal alumni who never loses the spirit of this school . . . a letter from Maude Gold Singland '11 says she knows the school "is reaching greater heights from year to year."

She was a student in the old Boiling Springs High School's first class, and celebrated her 71st birthday March 18. Retired from her work as a music teacher, she says "The Lord has wonderfully blessed me with health and strength. . ."

Her address is 7510 Greengate, Richmond, Va. 23228.

Alumnae Serving In Mission Field

Faye Turner '83 has served as a Southern Baptist missionary in the Philippines since 1958. She lives at Southern Baptist College, a combination elementary school, high school and college at Miling, on the island of Mindanao. There she directs religious activities, including promoting and planning Bible study for all classes.

She spent 10 weeks in a rural Filipino home in 1962 in a "graduate course" for her study of Filipino dialect. She learned how to bathe in a pseudonym (tooth keep tucked under the arm), sleep on a hard split bamboo bed and live on a diet consisting mainly of rice and dried fish. After graduating from Gardner-Webb, Miss Turner was graduated from Baylor University and received the master of religion education degree from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. Before her appointment as a missionary, she worked under the Southern Baptist Home Mission Board at Rachel Station in the waterfront section of New Orleans.

IN MEMORIAM

Douglas G. Fitzgerald '53 of Asheville, N. C., died April 17, leaving a wife, Kay, and a 5-year-old son, Henry.

William Rufin Walker '36 of New Castle Road, N. C., died Feb. 18, from injuries received in an automobile accident.

John Herman Faby Jr. of Newberry, S. C., a Gardner-Webb College alumnus, was killed in an automobile accident April 20.

Ralph Elliott '37, died May 18 after several months' illness.

All-Sports Banquet

Ken Street, George Adams Share Year-End Sports Honors

Ken Street, a Shelby businessman, and George Adams, an outstanding college basketball player, shared the year-end sports honors at Gardner-Webb College. Street was named the outstanding member of the college's athletic booster club, the Bulldog Club, and the Adams was named winner of the Karl Nelson Award given to the school's outstanding athlete.

Street was cited for his "interest and concern for the overall athletic program at Gardner-Webb." Street is president and general manager of Shelby Supply Co. Adams, who led the Bulldog basketball team to a 16-7 record for the season, was also named the most valuable player on the cage team. He was in the top five in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletes scoring race during the year and led the race for several weeks. Adams is from Kings Mountain, N. C. and just completed his second year at Gardner-Webb.

Others cited for outstanding achievement in the field of athletics at Gardner-Webb included Garry Wiley of Charlotte as the outstanding baseball player, and Jim Steward of Charlotte as the most valuable lineman and Ray Hanson of Coker, S. C., as the best back in football. Most outstanding tennis player was Terry Maney, of Asheville; Jerry Horrocks, Charlotte; and Bob Hens of Greenville, S. C., were the top golfers.

In football, Coach George Litton announced that Sid Bryson of Morganton was chosen for his sportsmanship and that Lee Thompson and Larry Mobley were named the best for their efforts in Spring drills.

Other basketball players honored according to Coach Eddie Holbrook were Richard Thomas of East Chicago Heights as the year's best defensive player and Jack McGill of Statesville, for "team before self."

Larry Suk of Hickory was chosen as the best sportsman among the basketball players and Mike McDowell of Shelby was given the Smokey Burgess Award in baseball.

Coach Holbrook presented a special citation to Tommy Burton, a local businessman, who helped "in many ways with our basketball team."

MAY QUEEN—Pretty Vicki Jackson, Charlotte junior student, crowned as May Queen during the annual May Day festivities on the campus. Coupled with Pinetree Day activities, the festival had a Disneyland theme and featured many Disney characters. A reception and concert followed afternoon popular events on the lawn of the O. Max Gardner Building on campus.

THE MINISTERIAL Alliance of Gardner-Webb has voted to give $100 to the school's Capital Gals Campaign to be used for scholarships for needy and deserving students. Members want to make the donation an annual gift.

JEFF CRANFORD of Charlotte will serve as editor of The Pilot, student newspaper, next school year. Edmund Brown of Columbus, S. C., will be editor of The Anchor, campus yearbook.

G-W's GOLF team rounded an outstanding season during their first year in senior college play, winning 12 of 14 matches in match play and winning 12, losing one and tying one in stroke play.

TWO SESSIONS of one week each of a football camp for boys 9 through 17 years will be held at G-W beginning June 26. Coach Cole Proctor and a staff of area high school coaches and professional players will be in charge. Further information can be secured from Coach Proctor at the college.

DR. E. EUGENE POSTON, college president, will conduct an "around the world tour" sponsored by attendance at the August World Alliance in Tokyo this summer. The tour begins June 18 and concludes July 18. The itinerary includes England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Israel, India, Thailand, Hong Kong and Japan and Hawaii.

THREE STATES and two foreign countries were represented among winners of awards at the 15th annual Awards Day on campus in early May. Two of the faculty members who made presentations are natives of foreign lands. Overseas students among winners included students from Thailand and Hawaii.

THE COLLEGE'S governing officers included 12 young women receiving their associate of arts degree in nursing. They will now write their state board examinations for licensing as registered nurses.
